Please note: The Anna Sugi Legacy Scholarship Award for Young Women is open to female students only who meet all eligibility requirements for the DVL Legacy Scholarship Awards. All other DVL Legacy Scholarship Awards are open to both male and female students.

For this Legacy Scholarship, female student applicants will demonstrate a continuous commitment to service in community organizations—not for profit secular or religious affiliate—that benefit women and girls through advocacy, education, or healthcare services.

Anna Sugi

September 20, 1960 – December 16, 2010

Born in a small town in the southern region of Italy known popularly as “the heel of the boot,” young Anna immigrated to Southern California in the 1980’s. She found work first as a clerk in the front office of a large medical group, but eventually worked her way up to group administrator. She then became a partner in one of the largest medical groups in the area.

Anna Sugi demonstrated excellence and perseverance through her example of a strong work ethic and her commitment to others. She was deeply committed to her community, and in spite of her tireless work schedule, she always made time for others in need. She founded the Today’s Woman Foundation which recognized other women in the community who embodied her beliefs in the power of education and independence.

In 2009, Anna died from an aggressive form of breast cancer. But through her two outstanding children, both physicians, she leaves to women and girls a legacy of inspiration in this scholarship for young women of the High Desert.
